

As Indiana's chief election official, I pledge to pursue the following sixteen-point plan to restore public confidence in our democracy and promote Hoosier entrepreneurs.

FOR

SECRETARY OF STATE

1. Dramatically increase voter participation among all age, gender, ethnic, religious and secular demographic groups across Indiana;
2. Establish Election Day as a statewide holiday;
3. End gerrymandering by taking redistricting from the hands of politicians and setting up a nonpartisan citizen's redistricting commission;
4. Expand early voting opportunities;
5. Eliminate obstacles to voting; end voter suppression;
6. Facilitate legal voter registration across all demographic groups and provide same-day registration;
7. Pressure lawmakers to pass a hate crimes bill;
8. Provide more tax incentives to businesses to make use of solar, wind power and other green energy sources, and for auto dealers to boost sales of hybrid and electric vehicles;
9. Allow public colleges and universities in Indiana to offer in-state tuition to DACA students;
10. Raise the minimum wage to make it more competitive with Michigan and adjust the state minimum wage annually according to the rate of inflation; insist on equal pay for equal work; reward businesses that pay higher than minimum wage;
11. Preserve and promote preventative health initiatives such as free vaccines and yearly wellness exams;
12. Legalize medical marijuana;
13. Provide support for businesses that help young working parents with the cost of child daycare;
14. Pressure lawmakers to provide more support for child welfare agencies because of the opioid drug crisis;
15. Institute an educational program for Hoosier citizens on the United States Constitution; &
16. Insist on de-escalation training for community police.

Indiana ranks in the bottom third of the 50 states in voter turnout. Only 58% of the eligible voting population in Indiana voted in the 2016 presidential election.*

That percentage is totally unacceptable!

Only a Secretary of State that is from outside the two major political parties can accomplish these ambitious goals & restore public faith & confidence in our democracy.
